POETRY.

THE HOURS.

BY MONK LEWIS.

Ne'er were the zephyrs known disclosing
More sweets than when in Tempe's shades,
They waved the lilies, where reposing,
Sat four-and-twenty lovely maids.

Those lovely maids were called "the Hours,"
The charge of Virtue's flock they kept;
And each in turn employed her powers
To guard it while her sisters slept.

False love, how simple souls they cheat!
In myrtle bowers that traitor near
Long watched an Hour, the softest, sweetest,
The evening Hour, to shepherd's dear.

In tones so bland he praised her beauty,
Such melting airs his pipe could play,
The thoughtless Hour forgot her duty,
And fled in Love's embrace away.

Meanwhile the fold was left unguarded—
The wolf broke in—the lamb was slain;
And now from Virtue's train discarded,
With tears her sisters speak their pain.

Time flies, and still they weep; for never
The fugitives can time restore;
An hour once fled, has fled for ever,
And all the rest shall smile no more.

Remarkable Twins.—Nicholas and Andrew Tremayne were twins and younger sons of Thomas Tremayne, Esq. of Cullacumbie, in this county; they were so like in all their lineaments, so equal in their statures, so coloured in hair, and of such resemblance in face and gesture, that they could not be known the one from the other; not, not by their parents, brethren, or sisters, but privately by some secret mark, or openly by wearing some several colored riband or the like; which in sport, they would sometimes change to make trial of their friends' judgments, which would often occasion many fruitful mistakes. Yet somewhat more strange it was, that they agreed in mind and affection as much as in body; for what one loved the other desired; so on the contrary, the loathing of one was the dislike of the other. Yea! such a consideration of inbred power and sympathy was in their natures, that if Nicholas was sick and grieved, Andrew felt the like pain, though they were far distant and remote from each other; this, too, without any intelligence given unto either party. And what is farther observable, if Andrew was merry, Nicholas was so affected, although in different places; which they could not long endure to be, for they ever desired to eat, drink, sleep, and wake together. Yea! so they lived and so they died. In the year 1564 they both served in the wars, at Newhaven, in France (now better known by the name of Havre de Grace,) where in this they something differed (though it being in that which was without them, was not much in them) that the one was a captain of a troop of horse, and the other a private soldier; but still with the same sympathy of affection. Being both to the last degree brave, they put themselves into posts of the greatest hazard. At length one of the brothers was slain, and the other instantly stepped into his place, and there in the midst of danger, no persuasion being able to remove him, he was also slain.

Upon the monument of these extraordinary brothers the following lines are engraved:—
These like'd twins, in form and fancy one,
Were like affected, and like habit chose;
Their valour at Newhaven siege was known,
Where both encountered fiercely with their foes;
There one of both sore wounded lost his breath,
And other slain, revenging brother's death.

The House of Tremayne is now represented by John Hearle Tremayne, Esq. of Sydenham, formerly M. P. for Cornwall—London Court Journal.

The Hare without any Friends.—When the French papers do set out in wonders of natural history, they beat the English out of sight. A hare was recently surrounded by inundation, and had no means of safety but climbing up a willow-tree, and perching, like a bird, on the topmost bough. A countryman discovered it, took a boat, and rowed on an expedition against the life of poor puss. He reached the asylum, pushed his vessel to the shore, and began to ascend the tree. It was no time for a hare to hesitate—with infinite promptitude, as if about to be seized for high treason, our furry friend took one leap into the boat, and losing it from the bank, sailed to the neighboring coast, where it disembarked and escaped. Meanwhile the invader was compelled to wear the willow, and seeking his own preservation by occupying the hare's abandoned seat, till at last he was rescued by his friends!!—Journal de l'Aube.

Harvard University.—There are many curious anecdotes of the manners of past times in the History of this Institution—the oldest College in the Union—by Mr. Pierce, (late Librarian.) We find it stated, among other things, that at the period of its foundation, 1636, corporal chastisement was a customary mode of discipline in the great schools of England, and other European countries, and that it was introduced here, and not unfrequently put in practice. There is a MS. diary of Judge Lowell's extant, in which one instance of the kind is recorded, in 1674, of a student named Sargeant, who was sentenced for blasphemy to be publicly whipped before all the scholars, sit alone by himself uncovered at meals, &c.; and the former part of the sentence, adds the Judge, "was presently put in execution in the Library before the scholars." The late Dr. Holyoke of Salem, who died at the age of 100, was of the class of 1725, and he used to say that corporal punishment in his time was getting into disuse. In one instance, in 1733, a Tutor was prosecuted for the use, or more probably for the abuse of it; for a year afterwards—that is, just a century ago—we find it inserted as an article in the revised College laws, that "it shall be lawful for the President, Tutors, and Professors, to punish undergraduates by boxing, when they shall judge the nature or circumstances of the offence call for it."—N. Y. J. Com.

Con.—Why are doctors and lawyers women?
Give it up? Because they are fee-males!

Taking Comfort.—Yesterday a veteran son of Neptune, just returned from the Horn, loosing his head-way, brought up, one half on the side walk the other in the gutter. Some of the by-standers were pitying the sufferer, others declaring what an excellent subject for temperance societies, and a third moaning over the degradation of human nature. The proprietor of the house before which Jack lay, coming forward, inquired of him what he was doing there. The Tar, raising himself upon his elbow, as well as he could, and squinting his eye at the enquiring gentleman, very grave hiccupped—"taking comfort."—N. Bedford Mercury.

How to stop Bleeding.—The Revue Medicale states that when all other means fail in arresting hemorrhage, a little oil of tobacco has immediately succeeded. That which collects in the stems of pipes which have long been smoked will answer perfectly. The discovery was made by Humel, a chemist, at Berlin, and his mixture is eight ounces of distilled water, two drams of oil of tobacco, and a few drops of etheral animal oil. This has been so effectual that, by a recent decree of the minister of the interior at Munich, all apothecaries are ordered to keep it prepared.—Mechanics Magazine.

A lady brought a child to a physician in Utica, to consult him about its precious health. Among other things she inquired if he did not think the Springs would be useful?
"Certainly, madam," replied the doctor, as he eyed the child, and then took a large pinch of snuff. "I haven't the least hesitation in recommending the springs—and the sooner you apply the remedy the better?"
"You really think it would be good for the dear little thing, don't you?"
"Upon my word it's the best remedy I know of."
"What Springs would you recommend, Doctor?"
"Any will do, madam, where you can get plenty of soap and water."

Washington, April 23, 1834.—The Senate have spent—1 beg their pardon, misspent, another day in violating one of their rules, by attempting to prevent the reception of the President's Protest. Mr. King, who had the chair yesterday, decided that Mr. Forsyth's motion was in order; the Senate appealed from the decision, disaffirming it.

Mr. Clay offered a modification of Mr. Poin-dexter's resolution, rejecting the Protest; but the latter would not accept it: he wanted to take the lead in this business—and so did Mr. Clay; but the latter had to follow suit, which is quite in his line. There was a good deal of irregular skirmishing, which all amounted to but little. They will do any thing rather than attend to executive business; but I think they ought to be called to account for this gross neglect of their duties. Is the pretended misconduct of the Executive any justification for their misconduct or neglect? Can one violation of the laws or constitution heal, or remedy another, as Mr. Calhoun (in his "theory of fire taking out fire; and frost, frost," pretends? But I will not misspend my time to argue the matter. What is the use of arguing about the conduct of a party, that, in open and gross violation of their senatorial oath, declare they will not consent to any nomination, till they can have things in their own way—till they can control the will of the President, and make him yield to their construction of the "constitution, as they understand it?"

Mr. Southard did not seem to rest satisfied under his castigation of yesterday; but made another speech to-day, upon presenting a memorial from a meeting of delegates, as they were called, who claimed to speak the real sentiments of the people! Legislatures, who alone can elect the Senators—they are nothing;—nothing when they instruct the opposition; but every thing when they instruct the administration party—more especially when their instructions are against the Executive—but nothing at all, when they approve of Executive measures! The opposition allow of no rule that works both ways—it must only work in their favor; and then it is a mighty wholesale rule—a "safe precedent!"

Mr. Webster made two or three speeches about public sentiment that would be heard and must be felt, and should be respected. He said the spirit of the country was up! Very true, it is up, and an evil spirit it is; and it preaches to the pious, silver-haired, venerable members of the Presbyterian church, who assemble on the wharves at Baltimore on the Sabbath day, instead of going to church; and instead of singing hosannas to God, "hurrah!" for a brother member of the church who travels on Sundays! indignantly disclaiming that he belongs to a "faction," but claiming to be an "exasperated patriot!" "The spirit" of the country is indeed "up!" and addresses a pious, "silver-haired" Presbyterian congregation from the pulpit of a tavern!—and out of the window of a tavern!—What else but spirit can we expect from a tavern? "The spirit" of the country is indeed "up," and, like Haman, it may be forty cubits higher than its "exasperated patriotism" ever dreamt of!

Is Mr. Webster, a member of a church—a partaker of the sacrament—an opposer of Sunday mails, perhaps, and probably—a grave and dignified Senator—a native of New England, where no man can profane the Sabbath with impunity—to be justified for preaching a political philippic against the administration, from a tavern, on Sunday, because a "venerable, silver-haired member of the Presbyterian church—he did not know who he was—told him, in the Revolution they had no Sundays, and they had no Sundays now?" He will have to preach longer to the people of Massachusetts to satisfy their "exasperated" piety, if it be not all hypocrisy, than he did to the pious mob of Baltimore, to gratify their exasperated patriotism!

I heard the rumor of this scene yesterday, but could not believe it; but there is no "loop to hang a doubt upon" to-day.

A different "spirit of the country" will be "up," if such outrages on the Sabbath are practised, and avowed, and attempted to be justified, because a "silver-haired Presbyterian may tell us there are no Sundays" now!

But Mr. Webster excuses himself for travelling on Sunday, because he heard when he got to Philadelphia that "the President had communicated an important document to the Senate," but did he not hear at the same time that his "contemptuous" friend from Mississippi had offered a resolution to reject it? And did he not know that there was a majority sufficient to reject it? And why, I would ask, has he absented himself a fortnight, if it be so very important he should be present, that he must travel and preach his way to Washington on Sunday?

But enough of this; such an outrage on Sunday will be remembered, till we have indeed no Sundays! I very much doubt whether Mr. Clay, who acknowledges he is no christian, would have been guilty of such an outrage; Mr. Calhoun, without any pretensions to piety, would never have dreamt of it in his metaphysics: it is left for the elevated piety, and "exasperated patriotism" of Mr. Webster. During Mr. Adams' administration he aspired to be "minister" to England; but I little thought he was an "itinerant" minister, and still less that his first ministerial labors would find a field in a tap-room, apud Baltimore! But enough! and enough! and enough!

One thing, I think I may assure the exasperated patriots of, for their consolation and confusion, viz: that the President's Protest will go on the Journals of the Senate, in spite of their itinerant piety!

REIS EFFENDI.

Names.—During the last war, the British partizans in this country took the name of Washingtonians, intending to pass themselves off for disciples of GEN. WASHINGTON; but Mr. Sampson, of New York, ascertained that their patron saint, was one Peter Washington, who burnt blue lights at New London, and worshipped the devil.

The same people now take the name of Whigs, but a writer in the Albany Argus has traced them back to Nova Scotia, and finds them to be identical with the tory refugees who fled during the revolution to that province, and he hence calls them Nova Scotia Whigs, alias Tory Whigs.

The Atlas groans in spirit because the worthy and respectable portion of its party discountenance the shameless and profligate course of its editor. The wealthy and respectable part of the community know too well the nature of a physical contest which that paper recommends.

The Arrival of the Lexington.—The Lexington has been absent nearly three years, during which time she has been cruising on the Coast of Brazil, River Plate, and in the neighborhood of the Falkland Islands. She sailed from Montevideo on the 10th February, and has had a long passage, owing to light winds, until she arrived on our coast in the latitude of 26, when she experienced heavy gales from the North to N. W., for several days.

The following is a list of the officers of the Lexington:—

Commander, Isaac McKeever, Penn.
Lieutenants, Joseph Myers, N. Carolina—John Bubier, Mass.—John H. Little, Md.—Thompson D. Shaw, Penn.—Joseph Stallings, Md.

Surgeon, Robert J. Dodd, Penn.
Purser, Andrew J. Watson, D. C.
Master, G. G. Williamson, Va.
Assistant Surgeon, Wm. Vanhorne, Penn.
Midshipmen, James Strong, N. York—B. F. Shattuck, N. H.—Wm. Pope, Ind.—Richard H. Lounds, S. C.—B. M. Hunter, Geo. S. A. Turner, Me.—Wm. S. Drayton, S. C.
Acting Boatswain, George Peabody.
" Gunner, James M. Cooper.
" Carpenter, N. S. Lee.
" Sailmaker, Wm. Ward.

Passengers from the Squadron in Brazil, Lieutenant Wm. W. Hunter, of Louisiana—Wm. P. Zantinger, Jr.

Passenger from Rio Janeiro, E. Roberts, Esq. of N. Hampshire.

P. S. No news of importance at Rio at the time of the L's sailing. The Emperor had so far recovered from his late indisposition, as to be able to ride out and take an airing. It was generally thought that the political state of Brazil was improving—all was quiet. The L. boarded brig Blakely, Capt Sawyer, of and from Portland, 4 days out, all well—Cape Cod bearing N. W. by W. distant 126 miles—desired to be reported. Capt. S. politely furnished the officers of the L. with newspapers. The L. put into Boston Bay in consequence of a gale from N. W. She sailed for Portsmouth on Saturday afternoon.

Read their Names.—A circumstantial account of the disorders which took place in New York during the late election there, has been prepared, by order of the Legislature, and reported to that body by the officer who has charge of the Arsenal. A letter from Albany to the Evening Post, in allusion to the author of the Report, says—

"As the officer in charge of the premises, he had a full opportunity to observe the disgraceful proceedings connected with this unparalleled breach of the laws, and I am much mistaken if his account of it does not cover the actors with public opprobrium and contempt. Contrary to the supposition of many who reside out of the city, it will be found that most of those who were engaged in it are individuals pretending to respectability in society, and some of them characters 'not unknown to fame.' Such persons as Silas E. Burroes, Redwood Fisher, Gen. Stuart and Simon Draper, were actually engaged in leading the mob in the assault upon the arsenal buildings, in organizing the phalanx of armed 'peace-makers,' harranging the multitude about 'liberty,' 'order,' and 'firing upon the citizens' to 'defend themselves.' When a breach was finally effected in the arsenal buildings, and the state arms were seized by the lawless gang within the yard, that patriotic and pure creature of the Mammoth, the negotiator with Biddle's 'breaches pockets,' was seen elevated upon a shed, calling to the multitude in the street, 'that every friend of the Bank could be provided with arms.'

General Todd, editor of the Eastern Argus, has sold that establishment to Mr. Holden, and retired from editorial life. Mr. T. has conducted the Argus for many years with great industry and ability; as the leading democratic paper in Maine, it has always been true to the old fashioned Jeffersonian principles of democracy, and in the known character and talents of its present proprietor, we have every assurance that it will continue the firm advocate of those political doctrines it has so successfully maintained in years past.

The Tory Wigs of Philadelphia selected the birth-day of the DUKE OF WELLINGTON, brother-in-law to Pakenham, as the time for their celebration of their New York defeat.

The Bank Committee recently appointed by Congress, were to commence their labors in Philadelphia, on Friday.

Tremont Theatre.—The noble opera of "Masaniello," in which Mr Wood appears to a greater advantage, than in any other piece, will be performed this evening.

¶ We would remind our friend Sargent, as one of the Committee of Public Safety, of the necessity of his early appearance at the Tremont theatre about this time, as some hints have been thrown out that a disturbance may take place there.

Major Jack Downing, an original drama, written by Mr Blake, will be brought out at the Warren, to-night, with a powerful troop of dramatic persons.

The brig Athalia, at New York, from Para, has on board a living Hippopotamus, and a Kaupera.

¶ Delightful weather, yesterday—Snow, Rain, Sunshine, Hail, Sleet, and a mixture of the five combined.

From the New York Catholic Diary, of April 5. To the Editors of the Register and Daily—

If you wish for an accession of subscribers and interest, come out with a long and bold article in favor of the anti-Administration party. The stronger you are in your denunciation of the present administration, the more your coffers may be replenished. The Jackson party cannot stand—so take your measures in time.

The above communication has been sent to us—we deem it an insult—and answer it by inserting the following ticket, which merits support—and we hope that this will be done in a quiet and peaceable manner, as becomes good citizens discharging an important duty to the country.

DEMOCRATIC REPUBLICAN NOMINATION.
FOR MAYOR,
CORNELIUS W. LAWRENCE.

POLICE COURT.

Margaret Franks, a neat little lady, about 20 years of age, was rendered "dangerous" to the male sex of the community by her unassuming manners and retiring beauty, when sober, and "disorderly," by her volubility and pugnacity, when tipsy. "Nobody ever saw me the worse for liquor," said Miss Franks. "Liquor could not make you worse than you were last night," replied the witness. "About 3 months ago she was let off for a fine of $5, which a young sailor, who was touched with a feeling for her infirmities, stepped up to the bar, amidst the jests of the spectators, and paid. In the present case, the Court thought it would only be sporting with the law to sentence her to the House of Correction for a short period, and she was therefore drafted for five months; and no substitute appearing, she was obliged to comply with the requisition in her own proper person.

Mary Ann Franks, an elder sister of the preceding syren, though in fact a younger looking damsel, was accused of "uttering many indecent expressions in the hearing of divers chaste citizens, and glass-blowing within the six months last past." The hectic, wine-flushed glow upon her redolent cheek, confirmed the last charge; but, with due deference, the first charge was negatived by the witnesses proving too much, and therefore proving nothing. There was no evidence that she had ever been within hearing of a single "chaste citizen" during the "six months last past," as alleged in the complaint. On the contrary, they swore severely that "she never associated with any but the vilest of the vile." This striking discrepancy between the charge and the testimony, however, escaped the notice of the Court, which gave her a month more than her sister.

Elizabeth Balch—a widow in weeds, having lost her husband only eight months—was "afraid to live alone in such a dangerous place as the Hill," and therefore formed an alliance, "offensive and defensive," with an ancient, but spirited colored gallant, with whom she had the honor to become acquainted in the house of correction.

Clerk—Elizabeth Balch, what say you to this complaint?

Elizabeth—My dear sir, I am so overwhelmed with astonishment at this unexpected accident, that I can't contain myself.

As she could not "contain" herself, it was decreed that the house of correction should "contain" her for the ensuing six months.

A nameless Nymph, meaning by this term merely that she was a biped of the homo species of the feminine gender, and not that she bore any resemblance, in complexion, figure or feature to any such a poetic personage. When the constable went to arrest Mrs Balch, he found Miss Non-descript there, and, by virtue of his authority, took the liberty of advising her to leave the house, and sweetened his advice by telling her "she ought to be ashamed of herself to be seen in such a house." She thought he ought to be ashamed of himself for saying so, and fetched him a smart slap in the face. The officer remembered her for an old one, and brought her to court. She was a stern looking subject, apparently 30 years of age, and, lowering, like a cross cow, refused to tell her name, and was accordingly arraigned without any name being inserted in the complaint. She was as mute as a mummy, till the evidence recounted the main incidents of her history for the last 2 years was introduced, when she addressed the Court—

"I went to that house to meet a friend, and I had no idea of meeting constables. I must say, however, that Mr G— behaved like a gentleman, although he is a constable; but as for Mr H—, he acted like—I don't know.... what..... I was going to say something, but——Its a delicate piece of business to be dragging a young female like me through the streets—As for my name you may find it out by your learning; I'll suffer three months imprisonment before I'll disgrace my family by telling it."

The court liberally exceeded her expectations, by giving her four months.

Lawrence Carr and his wife Fanny Carr were taken from the upper story of a ten-footer, in a state of utter insensibility. They had only been in the city three weeks. Judging from the length of his beard, he had cheated the barber to raise the rum. When in Court, they were unconscious of the nature of the proceedings against them, and submitted, without a murmur, to the sentence, which secured to them washing and lodging, and honest employment, by picking oakum, and cracking stones, for four months.

Fatal Accident.—On Thursday Morning last, Mr Samuel Upton, of Andover, went early to work in the Sawmill at Ballard's mills in Andover, and was found soon after dreadfully crushed, and life utterly extinct. It appeared that in adjusting a rope which passed around an upright shaft, used in drawing logs into the mill, and which had been put in motion, one of his fingers was caught between the rope and the shaft. The shaft made two revolutions, and at the third the rope drawing a large log passed across his shoulders and at each turn continued to wind around his body and the shaft, until the log was drawn entirely into the mill. The rope was passed about thirty times around him, from his shoulders to his feet. So great was the pressure, that the blood was forced from his extremities.—Haverhill Gaz.

Virginia Elections.—In the Senate, Fontain's election would tie the parties—and Harwood's would give the administration a majority of 2.

The friends of the administration have lost but two votes—Carolina by mismanagement, and Kanawha—and they gained 11 votes (counting Nottoway) in the Legislature—making 13 clear votes, in 46 counties.

The prospect is cheering. The result is in the hands of the People. Then to the Polls!—Richmond Enquirer.

CONGRESS.

Wednesday, April 23.—The Senate, proceeded to the consideration of the Special Order, being the appeal against the decision of the Chair, that the amendment of Mr Forsyth was in order. The yeas and nays were then ordered, and the question was taken without discussion, and determined in the negative, 26 to 17. So the decision of the Chair was reversed, and the amendment offered by Mr Forsyth then demanded that the question be taken on the resolutions separately.

Mr Clay then moved to strike out all the resolutions after the word "Resolved," in the first resolution and substitute the following:

Resolved, That the protest communicated to the Senate on the 10th instant, by the President of the United States, asserts powers as belonging to the President which are inconsistent with the just authority of the two Houses of Congress, and inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States.

Resolved, That while the Senate is, and ever will be, ready to receive from the President all such messages and communications as the Constitution and laws and the usual course of business authorize him to transmit to it, yet it cannot recognise any right in him to make a formal protest against votes and proceedings of the Senate, declaring such votes and proceedings to be illegal and unconstitutional, and requesting the Senate to enter such Protest on its Journals.

Resolved, That the aforesaid protest is a breach of the privileges of the Senate, and that it be not entered on the Journal.

Mr Bibb sent the Chair the following amendment, which he proposed to move when the amendment proposed by Mr Clay should be called up: After the words "President of the United States," in the second line of the amendment, strike out the residue of the amendment, and insert "be not received."—Mr Poin-dexter expressed his intention to accept this modification. The Senate then adjourned.

In the House, the principal part of the session was occupied by a debate of much warmth, upon a proposition by Mr J. Q. Adams, to amend the Journal of the preceding day.

The Senate, on Thursday, after some unimportant business, proceeded to the Special Order, being Mr Bibb's amendment to Mr Poin-dexter's resolutions relative to the reception of the Protest of the President of the United States, of the 17th inst. Mr Kane spoke at length against the resolutions, and in favor of receiving the Protest, and spreading it upon the Journal of the Senate. Mr Bibb rose to address the chair, but gave way to Mr Wilkins, upon whose motion the resolutions and amendment pending were laid upon the table, and made the special order of the day for to-morrow. On motion of Mr Wilkins, the Senate proceeded to Executive business, and when the doors were opened, the Senate adjourned.

In the House, the principal part of the session was occupied by a discussion upon the appropriation bill, which had not passed, when the House adjourned.

On Sunday afternoon, as the people of Baltimore were coming from church, Horace Binney and Daniel Webster made political and violent speeches from the steps of Bar-num's tavern, to the assembled multitude! The Baltimore papers state that the speeches were of the usual Bank savor, and that the mob shouted and yelled with delight. What words would be sufficient to convey the reprobation of the opposition had a democrat thus violated the Sabbath! But as it was done by Messrs Binney and Webster, it is all right. They, of course, are privileged to stump speech on Sundays as well as week days. The Bank is to be served first; Mammon knows no Sabbath.—Pennsylvania.

The Enemies of the Administration, immediately on the appearance of the President's Protest, fell to perverting its meaning. When the explanatory message followed, they charged it with contradicting the first one, because it did not admit the truth of their own false construction. They first make the President say what he never intended, and what his words do not mean, and then charge him with retracting his own opinions, because he declares he never uttered the doctrines they imputed to him.—N. Y. Post.

The New Orleans Bee, of April 5, says, that on good authority they have learned, that the Spanish revenue cutter Retilla had boarded and taken on the coast of Cuba an English schooner of war. The English vessel, taking the cutter for a slaver, fired upon her; whereupon she hoisted Spanish colors, which not being deemed satisfactory evidence of her true character, a broadside was poured into her, when an engagement ensued, and the English schooner captured with the loss of 14 men.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has given notice that proposals will be received at Harrisburg, until the 5th June next, for loaning to the state, for internal improvement purposes, the sum of $600,000. Also, that proposals will be received until the 10th of July, for loaning to the Commonwealth the additional sum of $1,665,400 as authorised by the act of assembly of 5th April, 1834.

The Bank men in Baltimore held a meeting on Tuesday evening last, to form a "Whig Military Association" for the avowed purpose of marching to Washington to attack the President. Some difficulty took place at the meeting, which is thus summed up in the Republican of Thursday:—

"Every thing, we are informed, proceeded quietly and smoothly until one of the orators commenced a violent tirade against the President; and upon its being resented by a spectator, they attempted to turn him out; and a general scuffle ensued. A request being made that the friends of the administration should retire, they were proceeding to leave the room, when two of them were struck with canes, when they turned upon their assailants; some of the Whigs retreated through a back window, and a general scene of disturbance ensued. Information having been communicated to the Mayor, he appeared upon the ground and exhorted the persons who were in the street to retire, which was immediately complied with and order was restored."

The Farmers Bank of Chattanooga, at Columbus, (Geo.) has suspended payment. The President has published a card, in which he assures the public that the Bank is abundantly able, not only to redeem its entire circulation, but to refund to the stockholders the original capital invested. He ascribes the failure to the inveterate and unceasing hostility of certain individuals who have left nothing undone "which personal hatred, religious bigotry, or political fanaticism could invent."

The house of Mrs. Lalaurie, in Hospital street, New Orleans, was recently discovered to be on fire. In consequence of a report that several slaves were chained in a retired part of the house, an examination was commenced, which resulted in discovering a scene of most inhuman barbarity. In a single room seven slaves, more or less horribly mutilated, were seen suspended by the neck, with their limbs apparently stretched and torn from one extremity to the other. They were the property of Mrs L. who had kept them in that situation for several months. Upon the facts being made known, the populace repaired to the house, and levelled it with the ground.

Hon. John H. Eaton has been appointed by the President of the U. States, with the advice and consent of the Senate, to be Governor of the Territory of Florida, to succeed Governor Duval, whose term of service has expired.—The nomination, made to the Senate some days ago, was confirmed on Thursday.
